

Damien King

Damien King is a Senior Lecturer and Head of the Department of Economics at the University of the West Indies in Jamaica, where he teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in introductory economics, macroeconomic theory and International Trade & Finance. Damien is also the Director of the Caribbean Policy Research Institute, a think tank that focuses on public policy issues affecting the Caribbean region.

His research has been in the areas of debt, poverty and distribution, and international trade and he has published in the Journal of Development Studies, World Development, and Social and Economic Studies, amongst other international journals and also in edited collections. He is the author and editor (with David Tennant) of Debt and Development in Small Island Developing States, published by Palgrave Macmillan.

Damien earned a B.A. from York University in Canada, an M.Sc. from the University of the West Indies in Jamaica, and a Ph.D. from New York University in the United States, all in economics. He is currently a member of the Board of Directors of Desnoes & Geddes Ltd. and has previously served on the boards of Dyoll Group, Dyoll Insurance Company, the National Export-Import Bank of Jamaica, The University Hospital of the West Indies, and The Jamaica Mutual Life Assurance Society.

Damien enjoys watching cricket, though, with performance of the West Indies team of late, that is hardly the appropriate word.
